

JAM (Just a Minute)

Last Edited: 05-Jan-2004

Identifying episodes of JAM is harder than for many programs. Broadcast dates are unambiguous, if correct. Identification by guest panelist or first topic is not necessarily enough to uniquely identify a show.

As a result, this listing goes into much greater detail to facilitate comparing episodes from other collections. Locations, first segments, cast members, producers, and internal references to seasons, positions within series and other clues can help to identify an episode.

As far as I know, there is no definitive source for JAM information so a comprehensive indication of missing shows isn't possible, particularly for the series in the 80's and 90's. Pointers to the show's history and series listings would be most welcome. One source has been used for the episode numbers in the early series: Dean Bedford's <http://www.geocities.com/TelevisionCity/Stage/2262/hist1.html>. (See also hist2.html and hist3.html) Almost all other episode data were derived from listening to the episodes; birth and death dates were culled from various fan sites on the web.

² This is a confused and confusing episode. Dean Bedford's listings and show transcript (<http://deanbedford.tripod.com/jam46.html>) name "Foul/Fowl" as the first episode. The transcript also includes the topic "Ties." It does not include the "Peanuts" topic in this MP3 file, although the participants and the date are appropriate. (Remarks about the election of Jimmy Carter) A search of available transcripts of this period did not locate a "Peanuts" topic. Are there export market variants of these shows? The order of topics differs as well. We conclude that Phil has one variant and Dean another of the same show. Dean concludes that other shows demonstrate this same variation.
